The following is a statement by Pablo Alvarado, executive director of NDLO:

"We invite President Obama to join us on Sunday at noon at the Arizona State Capitol. We hope he will take the opportunity to demonstrate his executive authority to prevent the harm that this hateful, racist legislation will cause."

The following is statement by Chris Newman, legal director of NDLO:

"We will use every means at our disposal to prevent implementation of this unjust and unconstitutional law. We will defend day laborers in Arizona with the full force of our organization, and we will take appropriate legal action to ensure this law is enjoined by federal courts so that it never takes effect. We have at least 90 days to achieve this result. We will also continue to call upon the President to honor his statements today and act responsibly. He has the legal authority and moral obligation to terminate policies that delegate immigration enforcement to states. He can end the 287(g) program and the so called "Secure Communities Initiative" with the stroke of a pen."
